

Lifelong Learning Research

Volume 4 (2006)

- 1- 8 The on-going activities and prospective tasks of “volunteer work for development” in Japan : Based on the Lifelong Learning Research Institute
SAITO Yuka
- 9-41 Programs to provide mature adults with opportunities for study with the prospect of their active participation in society
SHIMIZU Hideo
- 43-48 What can college programs do for the mature-adult’s career enhancement? Focusing on the “Professional Training and Education Grant System” and the “YES Program”
NISHIMURA Fumiko
- 49-62 A study on support for child-raising : From the viewpoint of support for students’ socialization as a part of research for creating city infrastructure by citizens through snow-balling participation in child-rearing.
NISHIMURA Mitoshi
- 63-80 Research on the role and effect that a community college has on community development : An examination from the actual practice of mature-adult colleges in two towns
FUKUDOME Tuyoshi
- 81-86 The possibility of connecting “hikikomori” (shut-ins) with their surrounding community through lifelong learning : Primarily, the general image of senior-citizen *hikikomori
HIGAKI Masaya
- 87-92 A study on the active assessment of handicap accessibility in the community : Through the activities based on the “Barrier-free Citizens Conference” in Matsudo
MINOWA Yuko and KIDO Miwa
- 93-95 Ambiguities in Japanese as a hindrance to English learning in primary school
SHIMAOKA Takashi